Design and manufacture of protective garments

> If disaster strikes, the right equipment can save lives, and those of others. Remploy Frontline harnesses leading-edge technology to keep first responders and military personnel safe from chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear (CBRN) agents.

For over 30 years Remploy Frontline has been an international leader in the design, development and manufacture of CBRN products for military and civil agencies worldwide, including US Homeland Security, MOD and NATO.

In addition to CBRN protection suits, Remploy excels in life jackets and performance textiles. With a strong corporate focus on technology, Remploy Frontline combines a dedicated team of product development, customer service, manufacturing and management personnel to deliver solutions to customers around the world.

Backed by a strong legacy supporting worldwide disaster response organizations, Remploy Frontline is positioned to meet the requirements of first responders and military personnel. Our products are designed to incorporate the latest technology with the real-world needs of our customers. Our continually expanding product portfolio includes world-class permeable garment systems; casualty and body bags; life jackets and CBRN accessories. Remploy Frontline products protect lives – that’s why we always manufacture to the highest international standards.
